

ADAM BLUMER

meaningful suspense

Dear Mark,

Are you like me? Too many books, too little time? Frank Peretti's This Present Darkness was one of the first Christian novels that really wowed me and opened my eyes to the power of Christian fiction. Recently, I came across his novel Monster, which oddly sat on my shelf but had never been read. So I'm digging in now and enjoying it. What are you reading and enjoying lately?

Death the Halls, my Christmas suspense novella (once part of the Mistletoe and Murder suspense collection), was released on October 11 in both Kindle and paperback. Check it out! Thank you to those who have already picked up a copy. The Kindle edition is available at a new-release price of only $1.99, and the paperback is available for $5.99. If you've read the novella and enjoyed it, please consider leaving a review here. Those reviews are so important for sales.

Other Novel News

- I'm making good progress on Shadow Agenda, book 3 of the Landon Jeffers Thriller series.
- I'm still working with my publisher to get the rights back for The Tenth Plague (book 2 in the North Woods Chronicles). Hopefully I'll have good news soon.

With autumn comes change, and there has been an important change in my life lately, which I hope to discuss next time. Change can be unsettling, but often God uses it to open new doors for us. Has anything changed recently in your life?
